Dr. Fricke Tells Meredosia Club Of Heart Disease

MEREDOSIA - The regular meeting of the Meredosia Women's Club was held in the Home Economic room in the high school Monday night. President Mrs. Hal Naylor opened the meeting. The Pledge to the Flag and the Lord's Prayer were led by Mrs. Charles Harbert, American Citizenship chairman.

Mrs. Clyde Buchanan, chairman of the program committee, intro-duced Dr. Albert Fricke of Jacksonville, who gave an interesting talk on types of heart disease, followed by a 20-minute question and answer period.

The Club Collect was sung to the tune of "America the Beautiful" with Mrs. Naylor at the piano and Mrs. Harbert as leader. During the business meeting, 24 members answered roll call. The club members sent a donation of $8.50 to the County Chair project. Officers and chairmen gave annual reports. The Well-Child Conference report for the year showed $71.25 in vitamins sold, 357 children and 66 adults examined and immunized. Mrs. Jack Wasson reported on Indian affairs, stressing the need for repealing the Indian Termination Act. A petition for this repeal was circulated to the members Jay Major, a junior at MCHS,

Editorial Comment

No Pat Answer

Since official administration studies are still under way, it is not proper to prejudice the now controversial issue whether or not there is a "missile gap" between this country and the Soviet Union.

Nevertheless, the comments of President Kennedy and Secretary of Defense McNamara suggest there is at least some doubt at this stage about the existence of such a gap.

If the ultimate judgment is that there is no gap, or that it is smaller than some have contended in the past. the Republican storm presently brewing will obviously take on hurricane force.

Even more vigorously than now, it will be argued that Kennedy and other top Democrats deliberately trumped up the "missile gap" as a campaign issue, that they knew all along it was sheer fiction.

Yet past experience with presidential campaigns indicates the answer may be a little more complex than

The fact is that in a campaign the "outs" often make what seem to them genuine, sincere criticisms, which turn out in the end to have been based on either wrong or inadequate information. When it comes to accuracy of information, there is no substitute for being "in."

This is true for both Republicans and Democrats. Things inevitably look different from the outside.

For one thing, however honorable their character and their motives, those who inform the "outs" frequently have an ax to grind or at least a more or less fixed point of view which colors their evaluations.

Furthermore, campaigns by their very nature are the enemy of the full, cautious, considered appraisal. In their hypertense atmosphere, it is all too simple to fall into the use of catchy shorthand phrases like "missile gap."

Seldom in the heat of battle does anyone stop to define such terms mean-

When the shouting is over, when the "outs" are "in." everything changes. They have at their finger tips the very best and most up-to-date sources of information. Far more important, they wear the mantle of responsibility, which is a vastly different garment than the attention-getting garb of the campaigner.

In this broad context of campaign history the current controversy over the missile gap-if any-must fairly be

The new president of Radcliffe College, Mary Ingraham Bunting, has a lot of ideas about women—all of them interesting, but some

That's the answer for some women, of course—particularly the women who take so little pride in the job of homemaker that when asked their occupation they reply "Just a housewife."

But there are still a great many women—and well-educated women at that—who choose homemaking as a fulltime, lifetime career and don't have any desire to turn toward a career of their own the day they send their youngest off to school.

These women have the old-fashioned (but still sound) conviction

GLAMOUR AND NAME ARE GONE—Franklin D. Roosevelt's presidential plane, the Sacred Cow, has lost its glamour and its name but the 16-year-old DC-4 is still on active duty. Known only as No. 7451, it operates out of Bolling Air Force Base in Washington, D.C., as a headquarters command staff plan? After East's opening heart bid South is certainly justified in bidding six spades. It looks as if a heart opening will give him

When West opens the four of hearts and the five and three appear in dummy all South's visions of grandeur go up in smoke. Obviously, that four spot was a singleton and West is going to trump the heart return.

What can South do about it? He has one chance. He must drop his king of hearts on East's

Now what is East going to do? If East is a really great player and is particularly sharp this particular day he may reason to himself that South just would not have bid six with two losers in his hand and that North's nine of spades and ace of diamonds represent a nice bonus just in case South held king-deuce of hearts. In that case East will lead a second heart and South will be down just as surely as if he had not tried the deceptive

On the other hand the chances are that East will look at his nice safe king of diamonds and drop it on the table whereupon South will be off to the races.

Newspaper Enterprise Assn

NEW YORK - (NEA) - The St. Bonaventure kids deserve lot of credit for passing up the National Invitation Tournament at Madison Square Garden for a shot at the capital prize.

That they hope, will once more see them deployed against all-conquering Ohio State in the National Collegiate Athletic Association finals in Kansas City March 25.

That would give the NCAA tournament its greatest finale since Bowl) undefeated North Carolina shaded Kansas in double overtime in the spring of 1957, which marked the renowned Wilt the Stilt Chamberlain's sophomore year with the Jayhawks.

The big Indians from little St. Bonaventure will travel a vastly more dangerous route in the NCAA than they would have to tackle in the NIT in which they have participated a half dozen times to become something of a fixture. There would be more money for the athletic fund if they went to the finals of the NIT confined to spacious Madison Square Garden and its sure turnouts of more than 15,000 spectatars.

THERE IS CONSIDERABLY more danger of the Bonnies being eliminated in the NCAA. Seeded in the NIT, they would draw a bye in the first round. Until now, at least, smaller colleges not affiliated with a conference haven't been given a break like that in the NCAA. There are strange courts to be played on and much more travel in the NCAA. After the Eastern Regionals at the Garden March 14, there are engagements in Charlotte, N.C., March 17-18, before the semifinals and finals in Kansas City. The Bonnies eagerly look forward to all this just for the chance to get another crack at Ohio State, the only outfit to repel them this season, and the national champion

Coach Eddie Donovan might not have been kidding when he said: "We put it up to the boys - NIT or NCAA. They made the choice. Me, I'd as soon stay away from that Ohio State bunch." But the remarkable Tom Stith and his teammates felt differently, especially after clearly establishing themselves as the second Over Jet Crash most formidable college team in the land by repulsing Bradley, 75-61.

AFTER ALL, THE BONNIES led the Buckeyes for a part of their memorable and climactic battle in the Holiday Festival at the Garden before bowing by no more than two points, 84-82.

The Bonnies are thin, possess no more than two capable re- U.S. figure skating team. placements, but if their starters remain in the thick of things they have to be given a chance against any college squad, including Ohio their families and ice skating."

The Bonnies may not attain the NCAA finals and even their score with matchless Ohio State, but to its everlasting credit the brave band from upstate New York isn't going to be ruled out

We are not making any retractions as the article didn't apply to every girl or boy who dons a cheerleading uniform. Instead, it was meant to reflect on the ones guilty of unsportsmanlike conduct. We cover a number of athletic contests in a season, locally and in the area, and we've observed good and bad conduct in the rooting sections. The one school that thought I was referring to them couldn't have been farther from the truth! If cheerleaders conduct their business and their rooters in a sportsmanlike manner then they are doing the job created for them and good cheerleaders will get the fans in the spirit for an enjoyable evening of athletics. We like cheerleaders-good ones -and we believe they add to the harmony of an athletic event. Maybe a little far fetched but it has been claimed a man is only as good as the woman behind him. Congress Hears 2 Jacksonville Courier, Jacksonville, Ill., Feb. 16, 1961 Cabinet Members' Economy Views

WASHINGTON (AP)-Two Cabinet members went to Congress Wednesday to appeal for swift approval of the first bills in President Kennedy's legislative program against the recession. The bills would help the unemployed and their families.

Secretary of Labor Arthur J Goldberg urged approval of a bill that would extend $950 million in benefits to men and women long without jobs. He estimated another three million Americans would exhaust their present benefits in the next 13 months

Secretary of Welfare Abraham Ribicoff seconded this and urged approval of a bill that would make families of the unemployed eligible for $305 million in benefits. He said the bill would help a million needy persons-750,000 of them children. The pleas of Goldberg and Ribicoff were part of their testimony before the House Ways and Means Committee, which opened hear-
